Every major city in the world today has a library. That was not always the case. (36)_____ cities in the ancient world were home to libraries. Perhaps the greatest of those was the Library of Alexandria in Egypt.

Built in the third century BCE, the library was dedicated to the Muses, the nine goddesses of the arts, and was made up of several buildings. This center of ancient learning (37)_____ not only hundreds of thousands of scrolls but also a reading room, meeting rooms, lecture halls, gardens, and a dining room for local and visiting scholars. Some say it was a blueprint for future university campuses.

The library's main collection held works on astronomy, philosophy, architecture, physics, mathematics, geography, medicine, and other important topics of the day. Some of the greatest ancient minds visited and worked there, including Euclid, Galen, Archimedes, and Eratosthenes. Foreign scholars were welcomed and even given (38)_____ by the Egyptian pharaohs to support themselves during their stays. The library housed the known writings and research of the day. To deal with its vast collection, a system of categorization had to be developed, laying the groundwork for today's library cataloging systems. Another development (39)_____ in the Library of Alexandria was the concept of a book. Since many writings could not be completed on a single piece of papyrus, several scrolls were required for lengthy works, and each one became divided like chapters.

Due to fires, foreign conquest, and even earthquakes, the library was eventually destroyed. (40)_____, the spirit of research and its organization survived, as other libraries came to life afterwards. They are rooted in the glorious accomplishments of the Library of Alexandria.

Annabel Lee

It was many and many a year ago,
 In a kingdom by the sea,
 That a maiden there lived whom you may know,
 By the name of Annabel Lee;
 And this maiden she lived with no other thought
 Than to love and be loved by me.

I was a child and she was a child,
 In this kingdom by the sea;
 But we loved with a love that was more than love—
 I and my Annabel Lee;
 With a love that the winged seraphs of heaven
 Coveted her and me.

And this was the reason that, long ago,
In this kingdom by the sea,
A wind blew out of a cloud, chilling
My beautiful Annabel Lee;
So that her highborn kinsmen came
And bore her away from me,
To shut her up in a sepulchre
In this kingdom by the sea.

The angels, not half so happy in heaven,
Went envying her and me—
Yes!—that was the reason (as all men know,
In this kingdom by the sea)
That the wind came out of the cloud by night,
Chilling and killing my Annabel Lee.

But our love it was stronger by far than the love
Of those who were older than we—
Of many far wiser than we—
And neither the angels in heaven above,
Nor the demons down under the sea,
Can ever dissever my soul from the soul
Of the beautiful Annabel Lee;

For the moon never beams, without bringing me dreams
Of the beautiful Annabel Lee;
And the stars never rise, but I feel the bright eyes
Of the beautiful Annabel Lee;
And so, all the night-tide, I lie down by the side
Of my darling—my darling—my life and my bride,
In her sepulchre there by the sea—
In her tomb by the sounding sea.

By Edgar Allan Poe
